NCEA OFFICERS & ANNUAL MEETING PROGRAMS

THIS IS HOW IT BEGAN....1967

Extension Groups Merge

KEARNEY — Three professional elements of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service were merged into a new organization, the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Association (NCEA), at the conclusion of a meeting Thursday, in Kearney.

Unified in NCEA are agricultural extension agents, home extension agents and state and area extension specialists. With the formation of the organization, the Nebraska Association of County Agricultural Agents (NACAA) and the Nebraska Association of Extension Home Economists were dissolved. The organization of NCEA proceeded after favorable results of a vote by extension workers in all three groups.

Officers of the new organization are Victor McClure of Beatrice, president; Jack Timmons of Lincoln, vice president; Deloris Clouse of Lincoln, secretary; and Mrs. Clare Sward of Beatrice, treasurer.

Other new members of the board of directors include Monte Hendricks of Scottsbluff, Bill Pedersen of Broken Bow, John Burbank of O'Neill, Roland Cooksley of Holdrege, Madeline Pedersen of Lexington, Genevieve Lawrence of Kearney, Margaret Stahly of Concord, Joan Luzio of Kimball, Ken Schmidt of Lincoln, Don Kubik of Concord and Paul Fischbach of Lincoln.

New county agricultural extension agents initiated during the Kearney meeting included Don Swoboda of Papillion, Richard Adkins of Grand Island, Don Spitz of Walthill, Denzel O'Dea of Benkelman and Robert Scriven of Scottsbluff.

New County Extension Home Economists initiated were Marlene Hinrichs of Papillion, Sandra Stockell of McCook, Mary Russnogle of Wilbur, Helen Nichols of Syracuse, Marcia Lowther of Beatrice and Pat Dunham of Sidney.

Glenn Kreuscher, farm editor of the Lincoln Journal and Lincoln Star, was presented an award for his outstanding contributions to the agricultural extension service.
